BRITISH NAVY IS DWINDLING UNDER TREATY

Washington Conference Ratio Being Observed—Super Dreadnaughts Will Go in 1925.

OBSOLETE SHIPS GONE

Relative Strength of United States and Great Britain Will Be Practically Unchanged.

LONDON (By Mail).—Great Britain is scrapping her capital ships "gradually."

Many people have had visions of dockyards, swarming with workers, dismantling the great grey ships alongside the quays, battering off guns and searchlight platforms, as if nothing else on earth mattered.

In England, at any rate this is far from fact.

In the first place most of the heavy scrapping to be done by England Admiralty officials showed is not scheduled before 1925 when four super-dreadnaughts of the King George V type come under the shipbreakers' hammer, or are sold, minus their armament and implements of warfare.

After that, the famous Queen Elizabeth come up for destruction in 1935, the Royal Sovereign in 1936, the Renown (already on the reserve list since the return of the Prince of Wales from his world tour) in 1940 and the famous Hood in 1941.

Sixteen Ships Now Scrapped

In the meantime sixteen obsolete vessels have gone to the scrap heap. They are the pre-dreadnaughts: Mars, Caesar, Queen, Swiftsure, Hindustan, Lord Nelson, and the Dreadnaughts Bellerophon, Temeraire, St. Vincent Dreadnaught (the original of her type) Hercules, Infelible, Indomitable, Crescent and Commonwealth. These ships it is true, were partly scheduled for the scrap heap before the Washington Conference took place. The Treaty of Washington took their fate and they have accordingly been "scrapped." That is to say they are no longer on the actual list of the Navy. Some of them have been broken up, others used as targets, others again, minus their guns, rest in the dry docks of Devonport and Portsmouth, rotting gradually with but a couple of caretakers on board—ships which were once the pride of the British Fleet.

Of the later types scheduled to go, and already off the Navy's active list are the Superb—in a few weeks to become a target for the bombs of British air squadrons—the Erin, already in the hands of shipbreakers, the Agincourt, New Zealand, Princess—Royal and Lion.

Process Is Gradual

But the process is gradual. A ship which has cost four millions cannot be scrapped in a week. To destroy a great battleship is an expensive matter and at least half a million dollars goes to the cost of the bill.

Consequently the big vessel for destruction is first of all paid off, and with a nucleus crew steams round to her last port where she waits further orders. There are many such vessels in what is known at the "Rotten Rows" of the dockyards. Some of them will be stripped of all their fittings and their guns melted down; sold maybe for reconditioning as freighters in the case of light cruisers, others sold to such foreign countries as the Treaty of Washington allows.

Many of the fittings of these monster war vessels repay their original placing in the battleships: Range finders can be used in garrison forts which overlook the sea, compasses, winches, steam launches, hydraulic derricks, telephone systems, searchlights can and are being used again in newly built vessels or sold to the merchant service.

The actual position resulting from the conference as regards the capital ships in service of Great Britain and America (to date is as follows):

Capital Ships—America, 31.
Capital Ships—Great Britain, 22.

But America must scrap one battleship and seven battle cruisers with Britain scrapping four battleships already built, so that in capital ships, the two navies will not be widely different.

In destroyers, America leads Great Britain, but in light cruisers England remains far ahead.

SOME PET DOGS AND SOME PET CATS, BUT GIVE HIM HIS SNAKES

NORMAN, Okla. (By Mail).—Step right up boys and see the only one, the biggest and greatest in captivity.

No. It is not exactly a circus or a side-show, but almost. It is the original of the snakes-for-pets idea, and "it" is a "he," being Chester Hughes.

Hughes, a zoological student in the state university here, who will receive his A. B. degree at the close of the present summer session, is believed to be the first student in the state to have snakes for pets. He has 13—water snakes, gar, garter snakes, and pilot snakes. He feeds them small frogs and mice.

Hughes allows the snakes to roam about his room, where he keeps them, and often has to look all over the place to find them. Each snake has a name, and Hughes says he believes the snakes know when he calls them by name.

COAL COAL

What about the prospects for coal in Columbia this winter?

We understand some parties soliciting coal orders in town have stated there would be no Illinois coal shipped into Columbia this winter. We do not fear honest competition in business, in fact, it spurs us on to greater efforts, but we doubt very much if there was ever a successful business built up by deception and falsehoods.

The Illinois coal miners went to work last Wednesday and are rushing the production of coal to the limit. We buy our coal from two of the largest operators in Illinois; one of these companies has a record of three hundred and ninety (390) cars of coal loaded in one day; six trains of 65 cars each. The other company not only owns its mines in four different towns but owns a railroad from these mines in to St. Louis where their coal is turned over to the terminal company.

This company has been in business fifty-eight years. They tell us there is no doubt that they will be able to take care of our needs. Under these conditions we think there is no cause for alarm, or that anyone need be persuaded to buy low grade coal at a high price due to unreliable information.

ELEPHANTS AND CLOWNS AND RED LEMONADE ON MONDAY

John Robinson's circus will appear Monday afternoon and night in Columbia and the day has been declared an official holiday by the amusement lovers of this section of the country. The Robinson circus train will come rolling into town on its own trains of specially constructed cars Sunday and the circus grounds at the fair grounds will, by a species of legerdemain, under a metamorphosis, and a city of tents, with all the interesting people of a modern Vanity Fair, will rise as if by magic;
